

AGED FORECASTER RESIGNS HIS POST

Dennis Horgan in Weather Bureau Fifty-two Years.

CAREER WITHOUT PARALLEL

Oldest Meteorological Observer in United States Quits Work Because of Accident Which Disabled Him for Life—Stored Up Reminiscences of Naval Officers and Scientists.

The Secretary of the Navy will receive in this morning's mail the resignation of Dennis Horgan, the oldest weather forecaster in point of consecutive service in the United States.

An accident sustained about two months ago by "Father" Horgan, as he is called, which resulted in the amputation of his right leg at the knee, is the cause of his withdrawal from the service.

Now Improving.
Mr. Horgan, who is now nearly eighty-three years of age, has recently been removed to his home, 558 12 street, northwest, from Georgetown University Hospital, where for the past seven weeks he has been steadily recovering from the operation incident to the loss of his limb.

Despite his misfortune, he appears in the best spirits, and the story of his unique career as a meteorological observer at the observatory for the last fifty-two years is without a parallel.

On January 12 last, while crossing a boardwalk on his way to procure the 3 o'clock reading of the barometer, Mr. Horgan stumbled and bruised his right foot, and gangrene having set in, the amputation at the knee joint was necessary.

Appointed under the administration of President Buchanan, Dennis Horgan has kept tabs on the weather at the Naval Observatory, on Georgetown Heights, for fifty-two years.

Stood Regular Watches.
Rain or shine, in all seasons, Mr. Horgan stood his regular watches for more than a century. Through the silent hours of the night this faithful man has taken note, every three hours, of the temperature, barometrical pressure, the nature of the winds, clouds, etc.

Mr. Horgan came from Ireland in the early '50s, and has since resided in Georgetown. His long service in the government brought him in contact with noted scientists, naval officers, and others with whom he "used to hunt asteroids," as he puts it.

When questioned in regard to his long experience as a meteorological observer, Mr. Horgan said:

"Oh, I can tell you nothing new on weather forecasts, though I have been making them on them, day and night, for more than fifty years. You know I was at the old observatory before Capt. M. F. Maury left it, in 1851, and have been learning a little all along since then."

"I have come to the conclusion that we can make no long forecasts until we learn more of the higher strata of temperature and direction of winds around the globe. I mean, of course, with any degree of scientific accuracy. Forecasts may, of course, be made on a series of precedent conditions with more or less scientific precision, but those deductions have to be made on one's judgment."

Topography of Country.

"The topography of the country adjacent to a given point has much to do with making predictions. For instance, take Washington. We have the mountains on one side and the Gulf stream on the other."

"In my opinion, both of those exercise an influence on the course of storms for this immediate section; besides, I believe the higher currents of air govern, more or less, both the speed and direction of storms, and, therefore, it is no easy matter to anticipate them."

In his long service at the Naval Observatory, Mr. Horgan has stored up countless reminiscences of naval officers and scientists with whom his work brought him in contact. Many rear admirals of the navy worked with him, and among the scientists whom he has aided in the study of the stars are Prof. H. Newcomb, Harkness, Eastman, Frisley, Skinner, and others.

MEDAL FOR DEBATORS.

George E. Hamilton Presents Trophy to Georgetown University.

Exercises in honor of the presentation of a gold medal by George E. Hamilton to the Philomathean Debating Society of Georgetown University were held last night.

Rev. Father Joseph Himmel, president of the university, introduced Mr. Hamilton, who has long been connected with the university, being president of the Washington alumni and lecturer in the school of law.

In presenting the medal, which he has founded for the purpose of rewarding and encouraging extemporaneous debating among the students, Mr. Hamilton urged that the students devote more time to the practice of debate, because of the help it will bring them in every walk of life, and especially in cases when one has to think and talk on the spur of the moment.

It is planned to have the regimental review field maneuvers and parade of the Washington High School Cadets on the White Lot between May 1 and 10. Arrangements are being made for the annual competitive drill, which will probably take place about June 1.

Instructions were given to all the commissioned officers of the High School Cadet Regiment by P. M. Hughes, assistant superintendent of schools, and Col. R. R. Ross, military instructor, at a meeting at Central High School Monday afternoon, regarding the competitive drill.

BOYS' SLAYER HELD INSANE

Herbert Dennison, Former Actor, to Be Sent to Matteawan.

Identifies Pistol Found in Park Where Playmates Were Shot at Inquiry Before Special Board.

New York, March 22.—Herbert Jerome Dennison, the one-time magician, who sent five bullets into John Fredericks, on the viaduct at 133d street on the night of January 8, was declared insane to-day, by the commission that has been examining him. District Attorney Whitman said to-night, in reply to a question as to whether Dennison shot and killed two six-year-old boys in High Bridge Park, on January 12:

"I am convinced from the evidence that he is the man who killed those two boys, and I am perfectly willing to say so."

The commission backs up the district attorney's opinion.

Although most of the authorities have been convinced from the start that Dennison was guilty of killing the youngsters, it was his behavior at the commission's examination that removed any doubts from their minds.

At this hearing the revolver which was found in the park near the spot where Arthur Shibley and Robbie Lomas were fired upon, was produced. Dennison was asked if that was his gun. Without looking at it, he replied, "Yes; it is."

"How do you know it is?"

"That's my Hopkins & Allen," he replied, referring to the make of the pistol. He was told to describe something about the .32-caliber revolver that would show his familiarity with it. Dennison thought a moment and then mentioned some scratches near the top of the butt. They were there.

His description was complete enough to convince the commission that the gun was his. Judge O'Sullivan approved the findings. To-morrow the court will sign an order committing Dennison to Matteawan.

BOYS ANXIOUS TO SWIM

Youngsters Ploek to Y. M. C. A. to Learn Manly Art.

Boys of the city anxious to learn to swim stamped the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A., Monday and yesterday, and A. M. Chesley, director of the boys' work, says that no matter how many boys wish to take the course in swimming, arrangements have been made to accommodate all.

Before the boys are admitted to the course, they must undergo a physical examination, and all those have made application should appear at the Y. M. C. A. Building on Friday and Saturday of this week, between 4 and 6 o'clock.

Depositor Awarded Damages.

CATHOLIC CHURCH CHANTS TENEBRAE

Solemn Office During Last Days of Holy Week.

LIGHT OF FAITH BY CANDLES

Lessons Made Up of Psalms of David, Lamentations of Jeremiah, and Prophecies Concerning Lord's Coming and Death—Single Candle on Triangle Signifies Christ Still Lives.

On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings of Holy Week the church chants a solemn office called the tenebrae. Tenebrae means darkness, and during the chanting of the psalms the candles, lighted in the sanctuary at the beginning of ceremonies, are gradually extinguished. No hymns of praise are sung, but the chants and lessons that constitute the tenebrae are made up of the Psalms of David, the lamentations of Jeremiah over Jerusalem, and the prophecies from the old Testament concerning the Lord's coming and death.

Six candles are lighted on the altar and fifteen on a triangular candlestick placed on the epistle side of the sanctuary. These signify the light of faith preached by the prophets and Christ, of which faith the fundamental article is the ministry of the Blessed Trinity.

At the end of each psalm, the candles are one by one extinguished, until only one remains, and this carried behind the altar for a brief period, and again brought forth and replaced, still burning, in the triangle. This is intended to signify that though Christ, according to His humanity, died and was laid in the sepulcher, yet He was always alive, according to His divinity, by which He raised His body again to life.

At St. Patrick's Church, the tenebrae will be sung this evening, to-morrow, and Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock by seminarians from Holy Cross College, Catholic University, and the sanctuary choir of the church, under R. Mill Sibley. The sermon to-night will be preached by Rev. T. E. McGuigan, on the Crucifixion.
